The campus radio station which is now in its 10th year is an independent, self-supporting organization which draws its personnel, teaching approximately one hundred, from both Clarkson and the State University Teachers College. Its purpose is twofold, first, to provide the student with the tools in equipment, recording, transmitting, and sound, to serve as a training ground in public relations, management, and radio engineering.

The station has had no more than its "Home" known Franklin State College to furnish it. Temporarily they have been housed in the old band room in Clark Hall. By next fall they hope to have a permanent location.
